Jonathan is a great person and a great tutor as well. I worked with him for about three months. This was my second time taking the LSAT, and I was having a lot of problems with an unstable score and test anxiety. We gradually worked through all of the modern PrepTests, and he helped me understand what types of errors I tend to make, along with how to catch myself in these errors. He is very reliable and easy to get in touch with as well. In all of my interactions with him, Jonathan showed genuine interest and dedication to helping me and providing me with the best information and resources possible. I could tell that he genuinely enjoys tutoring and helping his students. He is very flexible and easygoing, and went above and beyond the typical role of a tutor, spending extra time with me and giving me additional resources and information for me to work with. His sense of humor and pleasant demeanor helped to keep me going when I felt challenged. I highly recommend him; you will really get your money's worth. I tried working with other tutors in the New York City, and Jonathan was by far the best mentor and tutor for this very difficult exam.
