Took LSAT: December 2012

Score: 162 (86th Percentile)

When studying for the LSAT having the answers just wasn't enough, especially for some of the very convoluted logical reasoning questions. I would go to Jon completely convinced that the creators of the LSAC had made some sort of mistake, and he would be able to make me understand the answers through his clear and concise explanations. He would take the time out to make sure I had a thorough understanding of each confusing question, so nothing went unresolved. Regarding the LSAT, studying under Jon's tutelage was one of the best decisions I've ever made.
