

Phoebe Sprague

Took LSAT: December 2012

Score: 163 (88th Percentile)

I first began working with Jonathan on a recommendation from a close friend who told me about 7 Sage LSAT. I had already taken a course through a large, impersonal company, and was in need of a tutor who could create a plan of action for tackling the LSAT that was specific to my particular strengths and weaknesses. Jonathan did just that.

Over a two month period I worked with Jonathan at first on a weekly basis and then twice weekly as the test date approached. He was able to hone in on the areas that needed the improvement by addressing question types, in particular "flaw in reasoning" and other closely related logical reasoning question types, where I was having the most trouble. As I began to master what previously seemed like insurmountable hurdles, Jonathan worked with me to develop consistency and accuracy in my test taking.

Jonathan kept me on task and, as a result, I saw my confidence in my ability to crack the LSAT increase along with an improved test score. I highly recommend Jonathan as an LSAT tutor.